Risk considerations

- The Funds invest in other funds which may expose investors to increased risk due to less restrictive investment and borrowing powers, the use of derivatives, or being domiciled in a jurisdiction with less onerous regulation.
- The underlying funds can invest in assets such as bonds, company shares, cash and currencies. The objectives and risk profiles of these underlying funds may not be fully in line with those of these Funds.
- Where the underlying funds invest in equities, there is the risk that investment in a company may be lost in the event that it fails and is wound up.
- These Funds may invest in financial derivative instruments for efficient portfolio management purposes or to attempt to hedge or reduce the overall risk of its investments. Since financial derivative instruments may be geared, their use may result in greater fluctuations of the net asset value of the Fund.
- Investing overseas can bring additional returns and spread risk to different markets. However, changes in currency exchange rates may cause the value of your investment to decrease or increase.
- In addition, as an investor in other collective investment schemes, the sub-funds will bear, along with the other investors, its portion of the expenses of the other collective investment schemes, including management, performance and/or other fees.
