■ Manager commentary

During July we made several changes to the Portfolio, most notably lowering the exposure to equity markets and adding to fixed income holdings. The overall effect was a meaningful reduction in the Portfolio's level of risk and sensitivity to equity markets, which has so far helped in August following sharp falls in stock markets around the world and further strengthening in bond markets.

These changes followed on from our investment team's latest asset allocation review, where we debate the macroeconomic and investment environment and formulate our outlook. We ultimately took the view that equity markets were not fully reflecting the various downside risks to global growth. Our medium-term investment view remains constructive, but we felt that some consolidation in markets was overdue, particularly after a strong rally during the first half of the year. By reducing risk at this point we put ourselves in a better position to be able to add to risk assets following any falls in markets.

Specifically, equity holdings were reduced by approximately 3% in the Harmony Sterling Growth Portfolio, through trimming allocations to several underlying strategies across both developed and emerging markets. The proceeds were largely invested in fixed income assets. We added to US Treasury bonds, which are very defensive assets, as well as to some riskier assets including emerging market, high yield and convertible bonds.

One further change was made to our liquid alternative holdings, where we eliminated our position in the Aberdeen Alternative Risk Premia Fund and added the proceeds to our existing holding in the Neuberger Berman Uncorrelated Strategies Fund. This followed several review meetings with the managers of both strategies and further performance analysis, from which we concluded that we have greater confidence in the latter strategy. We also felt that the Neuberger Berman Fund deserves a higher weighting given it is a more diversified strategy which itself provides exposure to seven specialist managers, most of which we could not otherwise access. We believe that this updated blend of three alternatives funds is more robust and offers strong diversification benefits, both relative to each other but particularly relative to other assets across the Portfolio, while also providing good upside potential across a range of market environments.
