

MGIM announces Think-Tank 2019

'Building Resilience in a Fractured World'

MGIM (Momentum Global Investment Management) the specialist investment manager focused on outcomes-based solutions for intermediaries and their clients, has announced its 18th Think-Tank event. The theme of the 2019 event – which will be held at Stationers' Hall, London on 24 & 25 September – is 'Building Resilience in a Fractured World'.

The conference, which has been held since the company was established in 1998, commands a global audience with delegates flying in from around the world, with many attending every year. It is designed to provide intermediaries, wealth managers, institutions, consultants and advisors with insights into the current challenges faced by investors and guidance in constructing portfolios and assessing opportunities in financial markets.

James Klempster, Director, Investment Management commented on the theme of this years' conference; "The forces driving markets today are unprecedented in the post war era. Crisis induced monetary policy remains in place and keeps interest rates near historic lows; the dramatic rise in the digital economy is unleashing disruptive forces that leave no industry untouched; the rise of populism and the fracturing of the post war political and international order cast a long shadow; demographics, which have long been a tailwind, are becoming a serious headwind for economies.

"In combination, these forces have produced a depth of unpredictably and uncertainty rarely experienced. We will be examining these and their implications for investors, and will discuss the critical importance of building resilience in portfolios to guide investors through the unpredictability and provide the foundations for successful long term investing."

MGIM has collated a range of outstanding key-note speakers including strategists, economists and investment managers from global investment banks, asset managers and specialist firms. Products managed by many of these firms are used as building blocks within MGIM's award-winning multi-asset solutions.
